MSA EMPLOYEES CONTINUE TO SUPPORT SECOND HARVEST

RICHLAND, Wash. – Employees at Hanford Site contractor Mission Support Alliance (MSA) are eager to sign up for volunteer opportunities and continue to make a huge impact on our local community. MSA’s employee engagement program, MSA Cares, recently hosted a third volunteer event at Second Harvest. MSA welcomed employees, subcontractor employees and family members (including children) to help out. Collectively in 2017, more than 100 MSA Cares volunteers have sorted nearly 50,000 pounds of fresh produce and helped to package more than 4,000 weekend food supply kits for elementary school children. These efforts have provided nearly 60,000 meals for people in poverty, the working poor, elderly and disabled people on fixed incomes, and children and families in temporary crisis.

Juan Rodriguez is the manager of MSA’s Biological Controls program. He has volunteered for all three of the Second Harvest events, saying, “This is a great way to give back. We work hard for a few hours and get to see the tangible results of our work. Second Harvest is an incredible community resource and I’m honored to be able to help them provide food to those in need.”
